🔶 Simulate an expert

Ask ChatGPT to play the part of a customer, co-host, or talented expert.

Have a conversation with it, or ask it to generate content as if it were that specific persona.

/Example prompt/

You are a talented analyst at a top-tier market research firm, a graduate of Harvard Business School. Coach me to create content that connects with C-level executives at B2B SaaS companies. What open-ended questions do I ask? Prioritize uncommon, expert advice.

🔶 Challenge the conventional narrative

Ask for examples of what contradicts the dominant narrative.

Generate content that challenges readers' assumptions.

Seek out provocative angles that defy expectations and break the mold.

🔶 Ultra-Brainstormer

It's easy to have ChatGPT generate a list of potential topic ideas for your next project.

But often they're generic and expected.

Instead, ask it to come up with new angles or approaches to cover a familiar topic.

🔶 Capture your writing style

Feed ChatGPT your writing.

Ask it to help you create a style guide for future outputs.

It'll give you the exact words to describe your voice and tone in a way that AIs understand.

🔶 Use ChatGPT to write in different formats

Ask ChatGPT to vary its output.

- Outline
- Mind map
- Bullet points
- Persuasive essay
- Chunks of text of less than 280 characters
- Using the structure: 1) What, 2) Why, 3) How

🔶 Generate content with a specific purpose or goal in mind

Tell ChatGPT who your audience is and what you want to achieve with your content.

Remember, it has no context about who you are or what you want unless you give it some.

So give it context.

🔹 Get creative with ChatGPT:
• The more you experiment, the more you'll discover
• Try out new and unconventional ideas
• Seek out new ways to find interesting and unique content angles

Oh, and have a little fun, creating truly unique content in the process.
